Ida Evans-Randolph.

Ida Evans-Randolph.

The saddest funeral of all this year took place on Christmas Pay from St. James church, when loving hands laid to rost the body of IDA EVASS RANDOLFS. None who knew her in life tailed in deam to send to the corrowing mourners the affectionate sympathy of their hearts.

This levely woman was the ediest daughter of our distinguished to wasman, Colonel T. J. Evans, and the wife of Witten Randolph, of New York. She came into Richmond society soon after the war with the most brilliant galaxy of beauties over known in Virginia, and was at once recomized as one of its most charming additions. The sweet companionships of those days are well remembered by all who knew her in that Joyous youth; and when she turned her face to the solemn yows of the ablor, she carried in her girlish hand the heart which had belonged to her husband from childhood. In the tender associations which come with maturer years she was all that a pure and lovely moldenhood could promise—a loving daugnter—a sister who loved her own, a wife whose soul knew no life save the happiness of her husband, and a mother who with doting hand pointed her children the way to fied.

The writer of this bas heard many kind things said in the last few days about this splendid woman. But what should be her epitaph is thu. A friend who knew her well said: "I have seen no friend to-day whe did not recall some little graceful act—some kindly speech characteristic of her even and beautiful character."

May He of whose religion her life was a beautiful example brighten for the stricken ones the shadows as they fall, and grant them at last a happy returned with the child, the sizier, the wife, and the mother in the city of everlasting peace.
